Reaching out. The community comes together to support family of Ottawa cop fighting for her life

Family, friends and co-workers are rallying around an Ottawa policewoman as she battles cancer a third time. Karla Santos, who survived brain tumours doctors discovered in 2005 and 2007, was diagnosed with a third in December. "She can't walk and her speech isn't there either, so the only way she is communicating right now is through blinking," said her sister-in-law, Leah Harding. "But we're hopeful that she can regain some of her hand motions and be able to point at some stuff." Santos' husband, Adam Collins, is off work while caring for her, so the family's organized a fundraiser. "Our emotions are on a rollercoaster, that's for sure," Harding said. "One day everything looks great, the next day we feel like it's not going to get better, but we are all fighting. We're all fighting and pulling for Karla. She is fighting this. She's not one to give up on anything." A Fundraising dinner for Karla Santos is scheduled for March 24 at 6 p.m. at the Nepean Sportsplex. For tickets, go to fightforkarla.com.

How to Get the Price You Want (and Need)

OTTAWA - When you decide to sell your home, setting your asking price is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. Depending on how a buyer is made aware of your home, price is often the first thing he or she sees, and many homes are discarded by prospective buyers as not being in the appropriate price range before they're even give a chance of a showing. Your asking price is often your home's "first impression", and if you want to realize the most money you can for your home, it's imperative that you make a good first impression. This is not as easy as it sounds, and pricing strategy should not be taken lightly. Pricing too high can be as costly to a homeseller as pricing too low. Taking a look at what homes in your neighbourhood have sold for is only a small part of the process, and on it's own is not nearly enough to help you make the best decision. A recent study, which compiles 10 years of industry research, has resulted in a new special report entitled "Pricing Your Home: How to Get the Price You Want (and Need)". This FREE report will help you understand pricing strategy from three different angles. When taken together, this information will help you price your home to not only sell, but sell for the price you want. Airport authority chief to retire next year

After 16 years at the helm, Ottawa International Airport Authority president and CEO Paul Benoit will retire February 2013.

Benoit oversaw a wholesale revitalization and expansion of the airport following its transfer from government to the stewardship of a not-for-profit airport authority. During his tenure, more than $500 million was invested in airport infrastructure upgrades.

A new passenger terminal was built in 2003 at a cost of $310 million, an expansion was carried out five years later at a cost of $95 million, and a $60-million expansion to the airport's parking facilities took place from 2004 to 2010.

"After 45 years, I think I will start by taking a bit of a rest. Then, who knows?" Benoit said of his plans for the future.

An executive search is expected to get underway shortly to replace Benoit, the airport authority said.

Protest. Man says he's hunger striking to get Tories' omnibus crime bill repealed

joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

An Ottawa activist has started a hunger strike in protest of the Conservative government's tough-on-crime legislation, Bill C-10.

Obert Madondo, one of eight protesters arrested for trespassing in Confederation Park during the Occupy Ottawa eviction on Nov. 23, 2011, started his hunger

Background

- Parliament passed the Safe Streets and Communities Act, known as Bill C-10, Monday.
- The bill received royal assent Tuesday afternoon.
- Minister of Justice Rob Nicholson's statement on Bill C-10 getting royal assent: "By imposing sentences that are in proportion to the crimes committed, this bill recognizes that victims have suffered and gives them confidence in Canada's justice system."

- Critics say the bill's increased mandatory minimum sentences for drug traffickers and sexual predators would result in overcrowded prisons.

strike Wednesday at 12:01 a.m.

He vows to continue it until the bill is repealed.

One of the main problems he has with the bill is the section on youth crime, which includes tougher sentences for young offenders.

"We are cannibalizing our youth," said Madondo.

"We are sending them to jail for a long time to come back as hardened criminals.

And that concerns me."

He says he will carry out the hunger strike in his apartment and survive on nothing more than water and juice for as long as he can.

He doesn't expect the federal government to pay attention to him, but says his peaceful protest will draw the attention of MPs and other activists.

"I'm here to communicate to Canadians to say this is wrong and we have a responsibility to say no," said Madondo. "I'm prepared for that attitude where they're not going to listen to me, but I think where compassion is concerned, they will eventually listen."

Enough casino customers to go around: Lac Leamy official

OLG. Planned changes mean next March will mark end of slot machines at 17 Ontario racetracks, including Rideau-Carleton Raceway

steve.collins@metronews.ca

Officials at Gatineau's Lac Leamy Casino aren't worried about the prospect of new competition in downtown Ottawa.

"I think there's room for everyone, and it forces us to be creative, it forces us to be innovative and to constantly rethink what we're doing, and that's a good thing," said Catherine Schellenberg, Lac Leamy's chief of communications.

The Ontario Lottery and Gaming Corp. is planning a sweeping overhaul of its gaming operations, closing underperforming facilities and opening new ones in promising markets, possibly including Ottawa.

But Schellenberg doesn't expect Ottawa will be in the game any time soon.

"At this point it's a proposition, it's a discussion, it's a proposal," Schellenberg said. Last year we were talking about tables at Rideau-Carleton — that hasn't happened yet."

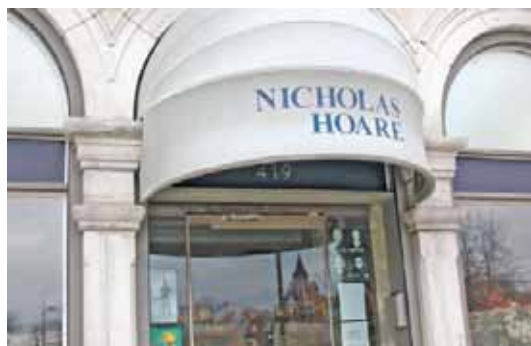

Lac Leamy, she said, already competes for gamblers' dollars with casinos in Ontario, Quebec and New York as well as the growing online gaming industry.

"There's more than one way you can gamble, and that's just going to continue to be a fact of our existence in the gaming industry. It's something we'll be following obviously," she said of the Ottawa plan. "This is a little closer to home."

Officials at Gatineau's Lac Leamy Casino say they aren't worried about the OLG's plans to possibly open a casino in downtown Ottawa. HANDOUT

Ottawa's Nicholas Hoare bookstore to close its doors

The Nicholas Hoare bookstore has been in Ottawa for more than 17 years.

JOE LOFARO/METRO

After more than 17 years in Ottawa, the Nicholas Hoare independent bookstore will soon close its doors.

An employee of the store at 419 Sussex Drive confirmed the closure Wednesday. Media reports said the owner may close his store in Montreal as well.

The employee said one of the reasons they're closing is because the property owner — the National Capital Commission — is hiking the rent by 72 per cent.

"There is just no way an independent bookstore can afford to pay exorbitant rent, which is what they're proposing," she said.

Mary Ann Waterston, NCC director of real-estate management, said the NCC does not publicly discuss rental negotiations with its tenants.

"The NCC is working on obtaining the proper market rates on all its properties," said Waterston.

Competition from retailers such as Amazon.com, Costco, and Chapters was also a contributing factor in the closure in Ottawa, the bookstore employee said.

Owner Nicholas Hoare is expected to make an official announcement this week.

Const. Czapnik's family ready to start the healing process

Gregson trial. 'This is a time to heal for us, right now,' slain officer's widow says

jessica.smith@metronews.ca

Const. Eric Czapnik's family is healing now that his killer is serving a life sentence for first-degree murder.

"We will go on, we will be happy again," said Czapnik's widow, Anna Korutowska, at a press conference at police headquarters Tuesday night. "It took a long time for us to say, 'We're surviving, we're OK.'"

Part of the healing process will be taking her five-year-old, Anthony, to Disney World, Korutowska said.

Anthony sat on her lap and played with a Lego police truck during the press conference. He is a happy child, but his father's murder has forced him to learn about death too young, Korutowska said.

Two weeks after the murder, he was playing in the bathtub and asked her, "Mommy, why did the police put daddy in a big brown box?" Korutowska said in her victim impact statement to the court.

Now he has a vocabulary no child should have, she said. "He knows what is a coffin, hearse, that people go to heaven when they die. He associates pipe bands with daddy's funeral."

"Eric was taken away from us. His life was ended way too early by a senseless act of violence," Korutowska said. "Whatever was the intention, it ended in tragedy for our family. However, I vow in front of you, we will persevere, we will survive and together we will raise little Anthony to become a good man, just like his daddy."

Czapnik's older son, Arthur, read a victim-impact statement on behalf of himself, his brother Lucasz and his sister Kasia.

"I remain fatherless and so do my siblings," he said. "The only thing we can hang on (to) is the fact that his blood runs through our veins."

Arthur is training to be a police officer.

"Gregson, because of people like you, I need to be a police officer, to help our community put away people like you," he said, staring at Kevin Gregson, who sat in the prisoners box without looking up.

U of O basketball team has high hopes for CIS championship

Gee-Gees. The women's basketball team will be practising hard for the game on Saturday

joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

The Gee-Gees must win three games to win the CIS championship and their first game in Calgary this Saturday won't be easy.

Sweat was dripping off the foreheads of the University of Ottawa women's basketball team Monday as they practised for the Canadian Interuniversity Sport championships this week-end.

The Gee-Gees head coach said the quarter-final game in Calgary against Saskatchewan is a big deal for him and his team.

"It's the culmination of years of work by these kids," said Andy Sparks. "Ottawa's never won a women's national basketball championship, neither Carleton (University) nor University of Ottawa. "Saskatchewan's an excellent team that's been ranked in the top three in the country since the start of the year," said Sparks.

Hard work

"It's the culmination of years of work by these kids."

Andy Sparks
Gee-Gees head coach

"They're a very strong wildcard team, so we're expecting to have a tough test from our first game."

Based on the Gee-Gee's performance over the past month, the coach said they have a good chance of winning the first round.

The team recently was declared champion of the Ontario Universities Athletics finals against Windsor on March 3. However, the Gee-Gees lost to Windsor on Saturday for the CIS regional game.

With that all in the past, the Gee-Gees now are practising hard for Saturday.

"It's all on the line in that game," said Sparks.

Finding fun in the town that forgot it

Fun, coming soon.

Gavin McInnes appears at the Mayfair Theatre March 19 to promote his new book and screen his DVD, Gavin McInnes Is A F—ing A—hole

STEVE COLLINS

Gavin McInnes says growing up bored in Kanata made him and his friends “fun ninjas,” able to create their own amusement anywhere.

“People from Ottawa, a quiet little government town, are actually pretty f—ing fun, I find,” said the co-founder of Vice magazine. “Maybe it’s because they’re forced to figure out their own fun, like prisoners can make up cool little recipes.”

McInnes returns to his old hometown next Monday to promote his new memoir, How to Piss in Public, which actually doesn’t include any advice on that activity. (The curious can check out his instructional video of the same name on YouTube.)

“I just went out to write a funny book,” McInnes said. “I didn’t really have an agenda,

- Breastfeeding. “My only problem with women breastfeeding in public is they never wink back.”

I didn’t have anything political to say and I didn’t want to impart any wisdom about life, but I’m realizing now, in retrospect, it actually is a good sort of how-to book on how to live. It’s about being a sh-t-stirrer and not being scared of anything and making mistakes and trying stuff and being an entrepreneur who starts businesses but also failing at business and trying to get laid and failing at getting laid.”

Gavin McInnes returns to Ottawa on March 18 to promote his new book.

Windsor. 3 women say they were molested by guards at U.S. crossing

Three Canadian women have launched legal action alleging they were molested by female U.S. border guards while attempting to cross the border near Windsor, Ont.

In court documents filed in the U.S., Leslie Ingratta of Windsor, Ont., alleges two customs and border protection officers took her to a holding cell while she attempted to cross the Detroit-Windsor tunnel for a shopping trip to the U.S. None of the allegations have been proven in court.

She says the guards conducted a search that included putting their hands under her bra and fondling her breasts, as well as rubbing her genitals.

The lawsuit alleges officials questioned Ingratta repeatedly and accused her of lying about her reasons to travel, and argues the mental anguish and emotional suffering she endured during the incident violated her rights.

In a second, joint lawsuit, two women from Windsor and Milton, Ont., say they were strip-searched in an inappropriate manner, saying the guards put their fingers into their anus and vagina.

One was eight months pregnant. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only Cleansing Can Make You Feel This Good

If there was only one thing you could do to improve your health and increase energy it would be a total body cleanse. Everyday your body is under attack from pollution, pesticides, chemicals and toxins. They are in the food we eat, the water we drink, and the air we breathe. No matter your lifestyle, no one is escaping this constant barrage of toxins.

First Cleanse

First Time Cleanse

TESTIMONIAL - Enjoyable Experience
"This was my 'first cleanse', and I can truly say it has been an enjoyable experience. I followed the directions, and made changes in my diet. The first few days, I began to notice some changes in my energy levels and 'waste elimination'. I also could tell the products were working, as my skin had mild breakouts. Towards the end of the program, the breakouts had cleared up, I was more regular in waste elimination, and I lost 7 pounds." - 2011-10-04

CleanseSMART Advanced Total Body Cleanse

TESTIMONIAL - Thank you so much! "My fiancée and I had always thought that we were relatively healthy at 47 years of age and had fairly decent eating habits in that we were conscious of what we put into our bodies - fresh fruit and veggies, as little processed meats, white flour, sugar, salt, etc. but over the last 6 months or so we were beginning to feel sluggish and that our age was finally catching up to us - very rapidly. We searched the internet and narrowed our search to CleanseSMART's 30 day cleanse. We are very happy to report that after only five days both of us felt an amazing change in our bodies - lighter, healthier and more energized! Thank you so very much for your expertise in formulating this cleanse." - 2008-01-16

Cost of royal military moniker? Half a year later, it's still 'priceless'

One access-to-information request to determine how much it cost Canadian taxpayers to rechristen the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Navy: $5.

The value of the move, in the words of Defence Minister Peter MacKay: "Priceless."

Even so, seven months after Ottawa announced plans to change the names of the military's air and maritime divisions, the Defence Department says it still needs more time before it can reveal how much public money has been spent on the move.

Last September, in response to an access-to-information request, the department said it would need 130 additional days to respond. The department now says it must consult with the Privy Council Office, the bureaucratic arm of the Prime Minister's Office, about possible cabinet-confidentiality issues before disclosing how much it has cost to add the royal moniker. The department says it is still awaiting a response from the Privy Council on the matter.

During the announcement in August, MacKay was asked repeatedly to explain how much the name change would cost. "You can put a price on it if you like," MacKay said at the time. "To me, it's priceless."

NDP defence critic David Christopherson says the public has the right to know the costs of a taxpayer-funded initiative to change the military's name.

"If we can't even get this kind of simple information out of the Conservative government, we are royally screwed," he said Wednesday.

"Everything starts from the premise that it's an absolute secret and nobody can know, and we have to slowly unravel the fingers from the death grip on the information to get it out. Why?"

Scott Andrews, the Liberal access-to-information critic, said a cost should be available by now. "They do this through freedom-of-information laws: put off, put off, put off," he said. They either haven't done their work, or they know the cost and they don't want it out."

A Defence Department spokesman declined to comment, saying it was up to the access-to-information division of the department to comment.

PQ raises concerns over halal meat

The Parti Quebecois is sounding the alarm bell over an Islamic food ritual, calling slaughter for halal meat an affront to the rights of animals and the values cherished by Quebecers.

The pro-independence party declared it is worried that mainstream companies are selling the meat, without any labelling, to unsuspecting customers.

Not to be outdone, the fledgling Coalition For Quebec's Future concurred consumers should have the right to choose which product they buy and halal products must be labelled. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sick, sick, sick. SPCA shocked after cat found frozen in a block of ice

Animal-cruelty officers in northern British Columbia are investigating a disturbing case of a frozen cat found in Dawson Creek Tuesday.

"It's a very sick action. I have deep concerns about the stability of anyone who would do this," said Marcie Moriarty, BC SPCA animal-cruelty investigator.

The cat was found frozen in a block of ice and placed atop a BC Hydro box in the Mile Zero Trailer Park at noon.

"The ice block ... was left just a stones throw away from where we found the corpse of a frozen dog in a very similar position and in a Tupperware-like container in January last year," said Moriarty.

"The first time we weren't able to get any significant leads.... We're hoping someone will step forward this time."

Before an autopsy can be conducted the cat must be thawed. Investigators believe there is blood also frozen in the ice block.

Other than the case of the frozen dog, "in my seven years, I haven't come across a case like this," Moriarty declared.

"The way that it was dropped off, this wasn't an accident, it was a deliberate act."

Tori wasn't young enough for Rafferty, court told

Michael Rafferty, accused in the killing of eight-year-old Victoria Stafford, is taken from court in London, Ont., on Wednesday. DAVE CHIDLEY/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Warning: Graphic content. Killer of eight-year-old Woodstock, Ont., girl says boyfriend got upset after kidnap Eight-year-old Victoria Stafford's killer continued her shocking testimony Wednesday — with a disturbing revelation about her accused boyfriend and the little girl's age.

Terri-Lynne McClintic testified Michael Rafferty — who she alleged Tuesday had raped the little girl — thought Tori was too old.

After she abducted Tori

McClintic's offer

"I would say it was all me, that he had more to lose than I did."

Terri-Lynne McClintic, testifying that she offered to take the fall for Michael Rafferty.

outside a Woodstock, Ont., school, McClintic said, she brought her back to Rafferty's car. He got upset about her choice of a child, she told the court in London, Ont.

"He made a comment that she wasn't young enough," she said.

They drove off with Tori anyway, said McClintic, 21, and the girl kept asking if she could go home, promising not to tell on them.

McClintic is serving life after pleading guilty to first-degree murder in Tori's death. Rafferty has pleaded not guilty to first-degree murder, sexual assault causing bodily harm and kidnapping.

McClintic also testified she told Rafferty she would "take the fall" for him.

McClintic testified: "I said that I would take the fall for everything."

She further told him, "he had a life, a job, things going for him and I was just, I really had nothing," court heard.

"I said don't worry about it, it's OK. It's OK. I'm just an 18-year-old junkie anyways."

Switzerland tour bus crash kills dozens

Death. Some 200 rescuers called to scene of accident after bus slams into concrete wall

A tourist bus slammed head-on into a concrete wall in a Swiss Alps tunnel, killing 28 people, mostly children returning from a ski vacation. Swiss police said Wednesday the vehicle was not speeding and everyone was wearing seat belts.

The bus was carrying students about age 12 from two different Belgian schools when it crashed shortly after 9 p.m. Tuesday night on a highway near the southern town of Sierre, Switzerland.

The horrific accident in the short Tunnel de Geronde left the front of the bus mangled, trapping people inside. Twenty-two school children and six adults including the driver were killed and another 24 children were hospitalized in what the police chief described as a "scene like a war."

Belgium flew anxious parents and relatives to the site and called for a day of mourning.

Authorities were still trying to work out how a modern bus, a rested driver and a safe tunnel could add up to such a tragedy.

A Swiss prosecutor said video cameras in the tunnel captured the accident. Olivier Elsig, prosecutor for the canton of Valais, told reporters the children on the bus were wearing seat belts, no other vehicle was involved and it was not speeding.

Speaking at a news conference Wednesday in Sion, the capital of Valais, he said investigators were looking at three possible causes for the crash — a technical problem with the bus, a health problem with the driver, or human error.

Earthquake. Japan hit by tremors days after tsunami anniversary

A series of earthquakes rattled Tokyo and northeastern Japan on Wednesday evening but caused no apparent damage or injury in the same region hit by last year's devastating tsunami.

The strongest was a magnitude-6.8 that struck off Hokkaido island and generated a small tsunami. Some communities along the northern Pacific coast advised residents to evacuate coastal homes.

A swelling of 20 centimetres was observed in water at the port of Hachinohe in Aomori about an hour after the tremor, with smaller changes seen elsewhere. The Meteorological Agency lifted all tsunami advisories within about 90 minutes.

About 9 p.m. local time, a magnitude-6.1 quake shook buildings in the capital. It was centred just off the coast of Chiba, east of Tokyo, at a rather shallow 15 kilometres deep.

Narita International Airport briefly closed runways for inspection but later resumed operation. Several local train services were suspended for safety checks.

This past Sunday, Japan marked the first anniversary of the massive magnitude-9.0 earthquake and tsunami that left some 19,000 people dead or missing, wreaked widespread damage along the northeastern coast and triggered the worst nuclear accident since Chernobyl. Rebuilding has yet to fully begin in many coastal communities.

Public outraged over suicide of girl forced to marry her rapist

Morocco. Local law pushed victim to marry rapist to escape prosecution and preserve her family's "honour"

The case of a 16-year-old girl who killed herself after she was forced to marry her rapist has spurred outrage among Morocco's Internet activists and ignited calls for changes to the country's laws.

An online petition, a Facebook page and countless tweets expressed horror over the suicide of Amina Filali, who swallowed rat poison on Saturday to protest her marriage to the man who raped her a year earlier.

Article 475 of the Moroccan penal code allows for the "kidnapper" of a minor to marry his victim to escape prosecution, and it has been used to justify a traditional practice of making a rapist marry his victim to preserve the honour of the woman's family.

Abdelaziz Nouaydi, who runs the Adala Association for legal reform, said a judge can recommend marriage only in the case of agreement by the victim and both families.

"It is not something that happens a great deal — it is very rare," he said, but admitted that the family of the victim sometimes agrees out of fear that she won't be able to find a husband if it is known she was raped.

The marriage is then pushed on the victim by the families to avoid scandal, said Fouzia Assouli, president of Democratic League for Women's Rights.

In many societies, the loss of a woman's virginity outside of wedlock is a huge stain of honour on the family.

In many parts of the Middle East, there is a tradition

Response

"Amina, 16, was triply violated, by her rapist, by tradition and by Article 475 of the Moroccan law."

Activist Abadila Maaelaynine, in a tweet whereby a rapist can escape prosecution if he marries his victim, thereby restoring her honour. There is a similar injunction in the Old Testament's Book of Deuteronomy. Morocco updated its family code in 2004 in a landmark improvement of the situation of women, but activists say there's still need for improvement.

In cases of rape, the burden of proof is often on the victim and if she can't prove she was attacked, a woman risks being prosecuted for debauchery.

Airline workers protest order

Air Canada union workers protest in Ottawa. ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Air Canada union workers continued to protest outside government offices in Ottawa Wednesday, after federal politicians imposed an arbitration order that forces the airline to keep flying.

Bill C-33, which passed Wednesday morning, covers about 8,600 mechanics, baggage handlers and other ground crew at Air Canada and about 3,000 pilots.

Labour Minister Lisa Raitt had proposed the back-towork legislation on Monday, saying a work stoppage at Air Canada was something the country could not afford. The government had invoked closure on Tuesday afternoon, setting up the final vote in the House of Commons.

But the union representing the mechanics and other workers said Tuesday that the decision to impose arbitration on its talks with the airline eroded labour rights.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where the Conservatives are expected to use their majority for speedy passage.

Food revolution.

Biological engineers have succeeded in creating edible meat from stem cells

"Let there be animals," said God, and He created chickens, cattle and fish. Actually, it's not God. It's Fu-hung Hsieh, professor of biological engineering at the University of Missouri.

Hsieh makes chicken. That's right: He creates chicken out of nothing — tasty filets that look, feel and taste like the real bird.

"Laboratory-grown meat needs to mimic the appearance and bite of natural meat," said Hsieh. "In the past, researchers haven't been able to recreate the appearance, so consumers wouldn't eat the artificial meat."

But even foodies would have a hard time telling natural chicken apart from Hsieh's new chicken. It's now being produced for use in restaurants.

Hsieh stands at the forefront of a global food revolution. Biological engineers in several countries have recently succeeded in creating edible meat that looks appealing. Earlier this year a Dutch researcher created the world's first laboratory-grown edible hamburger.

"We've made big steps in

How it works:

1 To create an artificial hamburger, steak, or chicken breast, scientists take stem cells from animals and grow them into a 3-D shape.

2 Then they grow the cells into muscle cells. As with natural muscle cells, the cultivated muscle cells "bulk up" into solid muscle bundles.

3 As soon as the muscle cells grow in size, it's important that the tissue is continuously supplied with nutrients.

4 The scientists then create chain products, similar to blood veins. "The easiest meat to create is sausage," explains van der Schaft. "It doesn't have to look attractive like a steak."

creating laboratory-grown meat, but the result isn't something I'd eat at this moment," said Dr. Daisy van der Schaft, a biomedical engineer at Eindhoven University in the Netherlands. "Part of the problem is that the gel that binds the cells together contains animal-derived material and actually also material derived from mouse tumors."

Professor Hsieh and his team are now about to create turkey, beef and fish.

"That's very different from chicken," he said. "With fish, especially, you have the additional challenge of replicating many different colours."

If research continues to progress, supermarkets could sell lab meat within the next several years.

Thinking of a trek on the back roads of Asia, a cycling adventure in Costa Rica or even an ascent of Mount Kilimanjaro? Get all the gear and info you will need at the first ever Ottawa Outdoor and Adventure Travel Show.

The event should attract upwards of 10,000 people from eastern Ontario and western Quebec, according to Dave Fraser, marketing manager, Caneast Shows Inc., the company organizing the event. Hardly a novice to large consumer expos, Caneast produces the Cottage Show and Pet Expo among others.

With 80 plus exhibitors, 17 speakers and numerous workshop leaders set to descend on Ottawa this weekend, there promises to be something for everyone, says Kathy McKinley, special projects manager at Caneast. Experts will be on hand to teach and discuss all things related to open air activities and adventure travel.

Land lovers can watch and listen about trends in cycling or rock climbing. If winter sports are your passion, you will get state-of-the-art information on heli-skiing, snowshoeing, and dog sledding. For extreme air sports enthusiasts, pros can advise on paragliding or hang-gliding adventures. If bio adventurism is in your blood, experts will be on hand to provide tips on planning an extreme expedition. And there will be exhibits and demonstrations on scuba diving and other water sports.

You will be entertained, enlightened and inspired by tales from individuals and groups. For example, eight friends will talk about their 7,000-kilometre, cross-Canada canoe trip, and Rick Hellard will give the lowdown on what it takes to become a triathlete.

Can't wait until summer to get a new mountain bike? Choose from the myriad of models at the show. And if you love kayaking but lack upper body strength, check out the new foot pedal boat. "If you have trouble doing the rowing, you can use that and still go very fast," says McKinley.

Ottawa is a perfect venue for such a show, says Fraser. Many residents of the nation's capital are well-educated, have stable jobs and enjoy the luxury of regular vacations. During those holidays, they already take advantage of the great skiing and snowboarding less than a half hour's drive away, the wonderful campgrounds nearby, and the many bike lanes within the city limits.

Since youth are a burgeoning outdoor adventure market, admission for the show is free for anyone 17 years and younger. Another target are those aged 45-65, many of whom are at or near retirement, are still relatively healthy and have some disposable income.

"We find that even the kayak and canoe suppliers are coming out with products that are geared to the aging population," says McKinley.

Climb on these attractions

A 25-foot mobile climbing tower and a state-of-the-art demonstration pool are just some of the attractions at this weekend's inaugural Ottawa Outdoor and Adventure Travel Show.

The show promises to inspire outdoor enthusiasts of all ages and from all walks of life, says Kathy McKinley, special projects manager, Caneast Shows Inc. It's especially timely as outdoor and adventure activities are growing in popularity across the country.

Kids and adults wanting to try their hand at rock climbing can scale Altitude Gym's mobile floor-to-ceiling artificial rock wall. No special shoes or clothing are required and harnesses are supplied. But plan to get there early; this thrilling attraction promises to be ultra popular.

Demonstrations of scuba diving, canoeing and kayaking, presented by Jenda Paddlesports, will take place at the pool. Viewing shouldn't be a problem since there will be two large screens that will show stunning underwater segments (see the pool schedule at caneastshows.ca/OAS-Pool-Demos).

Hikers, skiers and back-country enthusiasts can pick up outdoor survival skills at a presentation by Ron Vader of Search & Rescue Global 1 (Ottawa).

At the exhibit hall, you will find high-end equipment for mountain biking, kayaking, canoeing and other adventure sports. And adventure travellers of all ages can find information on their next extreme dream trip.

Passion. Becky Mason has spent much of her life on the water

PAULINE ANDERSON
For Metro

Becky Mason grew up in and around canoes. The Meech Lake, Que., native was only a few weeks old when she first experienced the world from the inside of a canoe. As a child, she and the rest of the family tagged along on trips with her dad when he made films about canoeing for the National Film Board. She even got married in a canoe.

"Canoeing is in my blood," says Mason. "I grew up thinking this sort of life was normal."

For a time, she was a whitewater guide but then turned to the more serene pursuit of solo canoeing. It became her life's passion to explore the lakes and rivers across the nation. Her favourite ite spots include the north shores of Lake Superior and the Dumoine river near Deep River, Ont.

Canoeing allows Mason to live her dream while "letting every day worries fall by the wayside."

Mason's family canoe collection includes almost 30 boats, many of them lovingly restored. Each holds a unique memory or experience, including one she retrieved from the bottom of a waterfall after it was used in movie stunt. One of her favourites is the birch bark canoe she first learned to solo paddle in when she was about eight years old.

For Mason, paddling is the quintessential Canadian pastime. "It allows me to access my history, the roots of Canada. It's part of our heritage."

And it's the perfect activity for people looking for an outdoor sport that's less strenuous than others. It's not difficult to learn and boats are generally quite accessible. Plus, many canoes are made of aluminum and Kevlar, so they are strong yet lightweight and more portable than wooden boats of yesteryear. Some of the newer paddles have bent shafts that make canoeing "incredibly fast and efficient," says Mason.

Today, Mason runs a canoe course in Meech Lake, passing on the artistry of canoeing — including the different combination of strokes — to a growing group of aficionados.

She just returned from a European canoe trip during which she visited Italy, the Netherlands, France and Belgium and the United Kingdom. As on her other jaunts, her husband, Reid McLachlan, captured it all in pictures.

She also recently completed a new DVD Advanced Classic Solo Canoeing (available at redcanoes.ca).

Mason calls it the "coffee table book" of instructional films. It's aimed at advanced canoeists, but includes an intro on the basics such as how to safely get in and out of a boat, and avoid tipping it. It recently nabbed the Best Instructional Film at both the Reel Paddling Film Festival and the Waterwalker Film Festival.

Globe Trekker. Adventurer has dream job

One of the worst filming nightmares for Ian Wright, host of the popular Globe Trekker television series, was in Baha, Calif.

Weeks went by with nothing interesting to film. It was hot and sticky and tempers were flaring. Wright had to stay in a flea-bitten hotel room with a broken lock on the door. "When I got into bed, I was like a toffee that's been chewed and put back in wrapper," says the hilarious and charming world-renowned adventurer.

That's one example of things going horribly wrong on the set of an adventure travel show that Wright, who also hosted the Lonely Planet/Pilot Guides series, will share at the Ottawa Outdoor and Adventure Travel Show this weekend

Ian Wright will stop by the Ottawa Outdoor and Adventure Travel Show Saturday at 1 p.m. PHOTO COURTESY OF OUTPOST MAGAZINE

(catch him Saturday at 1 p.m.).

The British-born Wright got into the adventure travel business by responding to a newspaper ad asking for presenters for the Globe Trekker series.

He submitted a demo tape on a lark and was surprised when he landed the job. He thought he would be lucky to keep the gig for a few years. That was almost two decades ago.

During that time, he has had precarious experiences all over the world. Like his visit to Uzbekistan, where he slept in what he describes as a grim "counsel-like housing project" with brown water coming from the taps. Thieves stole expensive camera equipment from the crew's car and brazenly demanded money for it. "We had to haggle to get our equipment back," says Wright.

Perhaps the scariest moment was in Mexico when he rode a bull at a rodeo. "My macho side thought it would be fun," he says. He wasn't laughing when he realized that if he fell off, the animal could easily kick him or dig its huge horns into him. "The bull was bucking up and down like a mad fish," but luckily he managed to stay on. Spectators threw shoes into the ring — a sign of their appreciation.

In most cases, everything worked out in the end. In Baha, for example, an awe-inspiring whale-watching excursion made the whole trip worthwhile. "Suddenly, it was one of the best days of my life; it was the most extraordinary thing we've ever filmed," he says.

Among Wright's favourite places to visit are Mongolia, Ethiopia, Cambodia, and all terrain north of the Arctic Circle, which he finds exotic and inspiring.

Wireless market. Foreign investment restrictions lifted for telecom firms

Ottawa moved Wednesday to level the wireless playing field by placing limits on the coming wireless spectrum auction and lifting foreign-investment limits on small telecom firms in an effort to boost competition.

Industry Minister Christian Paradis says the new measures will allow new wireless carriers into the market and foster greater competition in the telecom industry after the auction expected next year.

"This is the bottom line here: we have the three incumbents. We want to have a fourth player," Paradis said.

Canada's wireless market is dominated by Telus, Rogers and Bell.

The changes to the auction rules will let at least four companies obtain spectrum in each of Canada's 14 licence areas, effectively making one block available for one of the smaller players.

As well, companies with less than 10 per cent of the telecom market will no longer have restrictions on foreign investment.

Vehicle sales on the rise

Canadian sales of new cars and trucks opened the year on a resoundingly positive note, but may have fallen off last month, Statistics Canada suggested Wednesday.

The federal agency — which collects data on monthly retail sales in dollars and in units of new vehicles sold in Canada — found a 15.4 per cent rise in vehicles sold in January to 153,623 units from 133,146 units sold in December.

The data indicates sales rose at the fastest pace in more than 15 years in January, economist Robert Kavcic said Wednesday in a report by BMO Economics.

And while sales are likely to dip in the short term, the industry is headed in the right direction, he said.

"January's growth was largely the result of inventories becoming available after the auto-sector supply chain was disrupted last year," he said.

"Sales rose across the country, with Ontario and Quebec seeing the biggest increases."

Interest rates remain at low levels, making auto loans cheap and a spike in gasoline prices has also pushed some drivers to showrooms in search of more fuel-efficient vehicles.

PUTTING THE CLUB BACK IN SEAL CLUBBING

HE SAYS...
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca/hesays

As “pop” “super” “star” Ke$ha throws her weight (90 pounds) behind the fight against the Atlantic Canadian seal hunt, the question must be asked: Who spoke for the seals before pop culture sucked?

Every year there’s some sort of celebrity who clubs us over the head with the message that Newfoundlanders and Maritimers are barbarians for taking part in a tightly controlled hunt of sea mammals (horrors!).

There’s been Pamela Anderson, MacGyver, an America’s Top Model host, and generally just a cavalcade of Z-listers who need something to do now that there’s no such thing as Hollywood Squares.

What the $#!%!

And this year there’s Ke$ha, trying to $ave the $eals, despite an apparent shortage of funds which keeps her from replacing the S on her keyboard.

And this year there’s Ke$ha trying to $ave the $eals despite an apparent shortage of funds that keeps her from replacing the S on her keyboard. The irony in this case being that her music can kill surrounding animal and plant life at 100 paces.

All celebrity-bashing aside, there are only a couple of reasons why people care about the seal hunt.

First and foremost, seals are so cute they’re basically children’s toys with intestines. The acceptability of animal slaughter is based entirely on how adorable a species is. That’s why you never see a supermodel on the ice floes promoting the Save the Flounder foundation.

The second reason is that seals are killed for one brief period each year, which by definition makes it news. No media outlet covers the bloody slaughter of cows, chicken and sheep because it’s 365, 24-7, and budgets these days don’t allow that kind of in-depth reporting.

I feel particularly bad for the cow. It’s dopey-looking and is killed by the tens of millions. That’s why many celebrities have posed for those Got Milk? ads. Think about that. Famous people pose with the food made for the cows’ children smeared on their face, all with a big smile. Barbarians.

If you’re a vegetarian, cool, add the seal hunt to the list of things that offend your sensibilities. But if you like steak, chicken or lobster, then you’re a hypocrite, and possibly a big, fat one.

I just looked it up, and Ke$ha is a vegetarian, so I guess she’s off the hook. The seal hunt is a heated discussion, but I’m always up for differing, honestly held opinions.

I call a truce, Ke$ha. If we’re ever in Newfoundland at the same time, let’s go clubbing.

Balancing act.

Ashleigh Ball juggles multiple vocal gigs, the business side of music and band dynamics

BACKSTAGE PASS
Jen Traplin
ottawa@metronews.ca

Being in a band is a delicate balancing act. Especially if it involves members of both sexes, starting your own label and juggling another gig on the side.

For Ashleigh Ball, lead vocalist of Vancouver pop band Hey Ocean!, it's a routine she admits she is still learning to master. But, at least when it comes to the dynamic of her band, Ball says there are no problems there.

She and band mates David Beckingham and Dave Vertesi, who formed Hey Ocean! nearly seven years ago, instilled a simple rule from the get-go to avoid any potential weirdness.

"With a lot of bands that have members of both sexes, there's kind of that Fleetwood Mac complex where you date the members in your band. But we've made a point not to romance each other," she explains. "Me and the Daves, we're like a family."

Together, the trio started their own indie record label a few years ago, Pop Machine, with friends and fellow musicians Said the Whale.

Of course, with an increasingly hectic touring schedule, it wasn't long before the balance between music and business became a bit much and Hey Ocean! signed with Universal Music Canada to relieve some of the pressure.

On top of being signed to a major label, touring the country and preparing to release a new album, IS, on May 15, Ball is also a voice-over actress with a steady gig and a stacked resume.

She admits work is definitely a juggling act, especially because both jobs depend on her vulnerable vocal chords. "I'm still learning how to deal with it all, including how to take better care of my voice," she says.

Don't miss Hey Ocean! with Aidan Knight and The Donna Litas at Ritual Nightclub (137 Besserer St.) tonight. Tickets are $13 through ticketweb.ca.

Q&A. Metro chats with one half of the creative team behind new film Jeff, Who Lives at Home

EHRBAR
MWN Hollywood

Filmmaker brothers Jay and Mark Duplass do everything together — write, direct, conduct interviews. So we took it as a rare treat when, due to a scheduling conflict, we got to interview Jay on his own for their new film, Jeff, Who Lives at Home.

But if you're looking for simmering sibling tensions, don't get your hopes up. The quieter Duplass Brother passed on the opportunity to badmouth Mark.

Where did the story for this film come from?

We actually wrote a short film in 2003. It wasn't titled anything, we just wrote a very short film about this character and it was about him in his basement apartment.

It was inspired by the character, someone who is totally obsessed with the concept of destiny, their place in the world, their connection to their destiny, signs leading from one place to the next — potentially smoking marijuana.

And the concept was that we would take this person and thrust them in the world. And actually make them interact with the real world and some point and hopefully it would be funny.

It is funny, but it's also a very realistic, dramatic film.

Now that we have made a few films, we're realizing that a lot of times what we do is we start in on the comedic side of things — and I think that's how we experience characters like Jeff in our own life. You see a guy like Jeff at the supermarket, you're probably going to tap your spouse and giggle about the guy who is smelling the fruit a little too long.

But you get to know this person — they have dreams, they have hopes and they probably have a dark side. They probably have a really dark side if they are in that position where they're smelling fruit for too long, you know?

Where do you get the ideas for your films usually?

Mark and I have always sat in airports and in our apartments and told each other stories about these really embarrassing, cringe-worthy things that we've done in our relationships or that some friends of ours has done, and we'll be like, "Oh, that's awful."

It's very dramatic. And then we'll start giggling about it. And I now know that that's what we're doing in our movies. We're relating insanely specific and realistic things that happen between people and cringing about it and giggling about after. It's obvious now that that's what Mark and I have uniquely to offer the world, but that was such a painful, long-term process of finding that. We are terrified of looking out and looking at other filmmakers. We are completely focused on just staying within ourselves and staying within our peer group.

You've been brothers your whole lives, but when did you start creating together?

We've been creating together since Mark was born. We just grew up in a very creative family. We're just kind of from a middle-class New Orleans family, and my dad's a lawyer, my mom took care of us and now she does retail.

But when we were growing up, we baked, we made stained glass out of plastic Mardi Gras beads — and probably contaminated ourselves the whole way through. We did make movies with the giant VCR with the VTR attached, the separate unit. I would carry the camera and Mark would have to lug the VTR. We were in bands together.

So we've always made things and we've always functioned as a unit. You have to put credits up there, but Mark and I just make stuff.

Horse's death puts HBO show on hold

TV. Network to suspend filming with horses on racing drama Luck after third horse fatality

A horse was injured and euthanized Tuesday during production of the racetrack drama Luck, the third death in connection with the series, and HBO agreed to suspend filming with horses while the accident is investigated.

The humane group that oversees Hollywood productions had issued an immediate demand "that all production involving horses shut down."

"We are also insisting that this stoppage remain in full effect pending a complete, thorough, and comprehensive investigation," the American Humane Association said in a statement. It noted that the accident didn't occur during filming or racing.

The animal was being led to a Santa Anita Park racetrack stable by a groom when it reared and fell back Tuesday morning, suffering a head injury, according to HBO. The horse was euthanized at the track in suburban Arcadia, where Luck is filming its second season.

In the series, which was created by David Milch (Deadwood, NYPD Blue) and looks at racing's seedier side, Dustin Hoffman plays a crime kingpin who's scheming to gain control of a racetrack and introduce casino gambling.

During season-one filming in 2010 and 2011, two horses were hurt during racing scenes and euthanized. HBO defended its treatment of the animals, saying it's worked with the American Humane Association and racing industry experts to implement safety protocols that exceed film and TV industry standards.

The American Humane Association's film and TV unit, the group sanctioned and supported by the entertainment industry to protect animals used in filming, called for a production halt at the Santa Anita Racetrack in suburban Arcadia after the second horse's death.

Racing resumed after new protocols were put in place and proved effective, Karen said he had just examined the horse as part of routine health and safety procedures before it was to race later in the day. The horse passed the inspection, the AHA said.

"The horse was on her way back to the stall when she reared, flipped over backwards, and struck her head on the ground," Beck said in a statement. An attending veterinarian determined that euthanasia was appropriate, he said.

Dr. Rick Arthur, medical director of the state racing board, said such injuries occur in stable areas every year and are more common than thought. A necropsy will be conducted, he said, which is routine with all fatalities at racing board enclosures. An American Humane Association safety representative was at the track when the accident occurred and "as always, all safety precautions were in place," HBO said in its statement that said it was "deeply saddened" by the horse's death and was working with the AHA on its inquiry. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Television. Judd's 'great European adventure'

IAN JOHNSTON
Scene@metronews.ca

Ashley Judd says the decision to return to TV with the spy drama Missing didn't come easily.

"There was a lot of hesitation. I was really torn right up until I decided to do it," says Judd, who is best known for such big screen movies as Kiss The Girls and Double Jeopardy.

"But part of what attracted me to this project was the premise — which was very simple and compelling. I'm a mother looking for her missing child."

Which is true. To a point. In Missing, Judd does indeed play Rebecca Winstone, a middle-aged widow who is horrified when her son goes missing while vacationing in Europe.

But when the authorities prove no help, Winstone heads to Europe, where she quickly reveals her past life as a CIA operative who can kick some serious butt when things turn deadly.

"I only get back involved with the CIA so I can find my son. But to my great dismay, I start to get pulled back into that old life."

Missing, which stars Ashley Judd, premieres Thursday on CTV. HANDOUT

Missing is also something of an international production with episodes set in such exotic locales like Rome, Paris, Dubrovnik, and Istanbul. The international cast includes Sean Bean, Keith Carradine, and Canada's Lothaire Bluteau.

"We didn't shoot in Burbank. There's very little green screen and minimal interiors," says Judd, who last graced the small screen in the early 1990s with Sisters.

"The whole point is that we're taking North Americans on this great European adventure and making TV for the world."

Judd says prepping for the show's energetic fight scenes involved little more than a few weeks of yoga.

"I have some background in it. And I had an amazing fight choreographer. For whatever reason, I'm good at it. I'm a natural. I like it," she laughs.

Besides acting, Judd has devoted a lot of her time in recent years to furthering her education. She recently completed a Masters in Public Administration at Harvard.

"It's really fun to go back as a grownup with life experience and to look through the course catalogue and think — what do I really want to learn and study?"

Missing premieres Thursday on CTV.

Case closed ... Gillian Anderson admits to having lesbian affair

X-Files star Gillian Anderson confirms to Out magazine that she's no stranger to same-sex romance.

"I was in a relationship with a girl for a long time when I was in high school," the 43-year-old actress says, adding that she had additional flings with other women.

"You know, I'm old enough that I can talk about that," Anderson acknowledges that the dalliances might have had a bigger impact on her had they played a bigger role in her romantic life.

"If I had thought I was 100 per cent gay, would it have been a different experience for me?" she wonders.

"It's possible that my attitude around it came, on some level, from knowing that I still liked boys."

Lawrence tried to squash beef before it became an issue

Jennifer Lawrence isn't in a hurry to make any enemies in Hollywood, so when a tabloid story suggested she was feuding with Twilight star Kristen Stewart, the Hunger Games star did everything she could to quash it before it kicked off.

"There were all these like, fake quotes from me that were actually hilarious. Some of them were from my 'pal' and 'sources,'" Lawrence tells Access Hollywood.

"Then I was like, 'Oh my God. If she reads this, what if she thinks it's true?' I just shot her an email, and was like, 'Hey, can't wait to see more as this feud unfolds!'"

Stewart, no stranger to being tabloid fodder, took it in stride.

"She wrote me back," says Lawrence. "She was like, 'It's fine. Welcome to the world where everything you say gets turned into (something it's not).' So, she understood."

Lohan could see a hit and run charge

It's been, what? A hot minute since Lindsay Lohan hasn't been in trouble with the law?

Her days-long winning streak is seemingly coming to an end after allegedly hitting a man with her brand new black Porsche and fleeing the scene in Hollywood late Tuesday night, according to TMZ.

Lohan was reportedly trying to execute a three-point turn and avoid paparazzi while leaving a nightclub when her car made contact with the manager of a nearby hookah lounge.

The manager, whose knee was supposedly grazed, initially said he was fine and didn't need medical attention, according to paparazzi on the scene. But when he was informed that Lohan was behind the wheel, he reportedly began complaining about being injured.

The man was taken to the emergency room and is said to be considering hiring a lawyer and pressing charges.

Police sources tell the website that they will open a hit-and-run investigation if the man decides to press charges.

Tell-all book could net Perry a multi-million dollar payday

Katy Perry has reportedly been flooded with offers to write a tell-all book about her divorce from Russell Brand, with one publisher offering $3.1 million for the story, according to the Sun.

There's no word on whether she's considering the offer, but some speculate that her recent silence seems suspect.

"When everything was going well, Katy couldn't stop talking about him," a source notes.

"Since the split, neither of them have said anything — keeping the price of a deal high."

The decorated waist

Inhale and hold. The waist was a major focal point for the fall shows.

Burberry Prorsum highlighted it with little bows, Etro played it up with horsey harnesses and pep-lums, while Fendi and Acne cinched it with wide, sculpting belts. This is probably the easiest idea to adopt now. Simply grab a ribbon and tie it around any one of spring's trendy, lady-like dresses.

Clothes you can breathe in

Despite all the nipped and cinched waists we've seen all month, there was also an overall no-squeezing-required easiness to a lot of the clothes designers showed for fall.

Basically, you don't have to have the perfect body to pull them off.

Think relaxed and slouchy trousers (as seen at Balenciaga, Dries van Noten and Proenza Schouler, to name a few) and skirts that are forgivingly full and knee length (Marc Jacobs, Rodarte and Rochas are good examples).

So go ahead and eat the bun that came with that hamburger.

NEXT FALL

Dark and moody

The darker the colour, the more on-trend you'll be next fall. Burgundy, oxblood and purple were the colours of the season in New York and London showing up everywhere from Diane von Furstenberg to Jason Wu to Christopher Kane.

And black dominated Milan and Paris — just look at Gucci, Alberta Ferretti, Roberto Cavalli, Givenchy and Yves Saint Laurent for proof. You get extra points if you go dark from head to toe à la Rooney Mara,

Look-at-me outerwear

Technically, every autumn/winter show is an outerwear show.

Coats and jackets are one of those items that women rarely skimp on, so designers like to give plenty to choose from here.

That said, the outerwear reached new heights when it comes to fabric innovation and embellishment — that's a good thing when you consider that the winter coat is the only thing a person really sees on the street in winter.

Our votes for season's best goes to Prada (decorative and ornamental), Alexander Wang (slick, sleek and urban) and Jil Sander (soft, chic and romantic).

When soundtracks go right

The playlist for Raf Simons' last Jil Sander show included The Smashing Pumpkins' 'Tonight', Mazzy Star's 'Fade Into You', and Sonic Youth's cover of Superstar. It was poignant and slightly melancholic, helping to get the audience appropriately choked up for Simons' final bow.

And when they go wrong

Sportmax showed a solid, polished collection. But that's not what everyone was talking about after the show. That would actually be the soundtrack, which was randomly filled with the raunchiest hip hop club bangers including The Ying Yang Twins' notoriously pervy 'Whisper Song'.

The Azealia vs. Lana sing-off

It was the month of Azealia Banks' 212 and Lana del Rey's Video Games with their music popping up at Unique, Blugirl, Etro, Tracy Reese, the list goes on. That said, maybe it's time for these ladies to drop a new single?

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes

Area rugs not only add a decorative touch to a room but can also bring furniture together in open concept spaces, protect hardwood floors from pets and children, muffle noise and be soft underfoot for comfort.

The trend of the hand-spun, hand-dyed rug that celebrates the contemporary craftsman is all the rage in rugs; and not only in the upper price range where most of the big trends usually start.

Similar to how a special painting or sculpture will contribute to a room, a unique area rug will bring style and personality in a simple space.

Here's a look at some of the fantastic and affordable area rugs following the handmade trends.

Tie-dye

Dyeing old carpets with saturated colour has been a popular way to renew the look of outdated rugs for a few years now. Black, white and grey neutrals are on trend for this season and CB2's hand tufted wool carpet goes through a 36-step process to achieve the groovy tie-dyed effect. Tie-Dye Rug, $299/five-by-eight feet, CB2 (see above).

Exotic finds

There's no need to travel halfway around the world to an exotic country in hopes of bringing back a souvenir rug. Known as 'rag-rugs' in Morocco, Boucherouite rugs are handcrafted from scraps of yarn for a one of a kind, exotic look and imported to North America. Hand woven from cotton and wool in classic Moroccan patterns. Found Moroccan Boucherouite Rug, $470/ four-by-seven feet, West Elm (see left).

Thick and tufted

Not since the all-wool Chinese tufted carpet have we seen artful rugs so thick and comfortable underfoot. Clean lines and simplicity makes the three-quarter-inch thick Chelsea Blue Hearts rug durable and elegant. All wool with shimmering viscose accents helps to give a luxe appeal while absorbing noise and sound in style. Blue Hearts Chelsea Rug, $299/five-

Hi Charles,
Love your column. Do you have a solution to get rid of orange soap scum stains on the caulking of shower stalls? I've switched to liquid soap and have tried everything (clear vinegar, baking soda paste, Tilex) along with scrubbing, but to no avail. Thanks, Peter

Dear Peter,

What kind of orange soap are you using that causes so much staining to the caulking in your shower? That's the first thing that sounds scary to me!

Now you said you have tried a baking soda paste. I want you to change your mixture and use about 3 parts baking soda to 1 part hydrogen peroxide, and leave this solution on the grout/caulking for at least one hour.

Then simply rinse away. This may just do the trick. If it does not after everything you have tried, it may mean that your caulking (most likely a plastic base) has absorbed and taken on the colour of your soap. This means you only have two options left:

1. Re-do the caulking in your shower.
2. Change soap.

Good Luck!

Stripped down style isn't just for bachelors and serial killers

Utilitarian decor.

More of us are embracing this style of decor for its clean simplicity. It's all about being understated.

life@metronews.ca

The utilitarian look doesn't have to resemble a vacant factory floor. We spoke to designer Adrienne Chinn about making hard-edged feel homely.

Putting your interior faith in the utilitarian look has a similar ring to that of joining a particularly strict religious sect. In other words, it sounds spartan, clinical and practical, with little room for creative expression and individualism.

Of course, that's not the case, it being an increasingly popular trend among urbanites. The reason for peoples' conversion to the pared-down look is "because more people are buying properties in buildings that were once warehouses, pubs or other commercial spaces — the style works well in large, open spaces with an industrial feel," explains Chinn.

No cost to comfort

You might be going for a lo-fi style but that doesn't mean your apartment has to be the interior equivalent of a hair shirt. "It's important to incorporate comfort into a utilitarian style," says the design director of Adrienne Chinn Design. "Put up custom-sized industrial landscape wall coverings next to brick walls or concrete flooring for some graphic color. Dress large windows with some full-length silk curtains. The trick is to add tactile comfort with a utilitarian edge in the design."

Streamline with lines

Meticulously spic-and-span flats can read a little obsessive-compulsive, but the interiors expert sees it differently. "It's a clutter-free, edgy and modern look. Build in handle-less cupboards to stow away your stuff or bring in locker-style cupboards for a streetwise element," says Chinn. She adds, "It's perfect for the bachelor, the couple, or for a young family (lots of room to run around the flat). I've even known a couple regularly roller-skate around their industrial space."

Low-stress living

You don't have to be the fastidious type either, claims Chinn, aside from keeping your place tidy: "Floors are normally wood, tile, concrete or poured resin, which are easy to keep clean. However it's important to include area rugs to soften the edges of the look."

Old meets new

Just because you live in a period property doesn't mean that your decor has to remain a relic of the past. The expert says, "You can bring elements of the utilitarian look into older properties. Streamlined sectional sofas and modern lighting look great with an old Persian carpet, modern art against a white wall and original architectural features like fireplaces and cornices all juxtapose superbly. It's all a matter of balance."

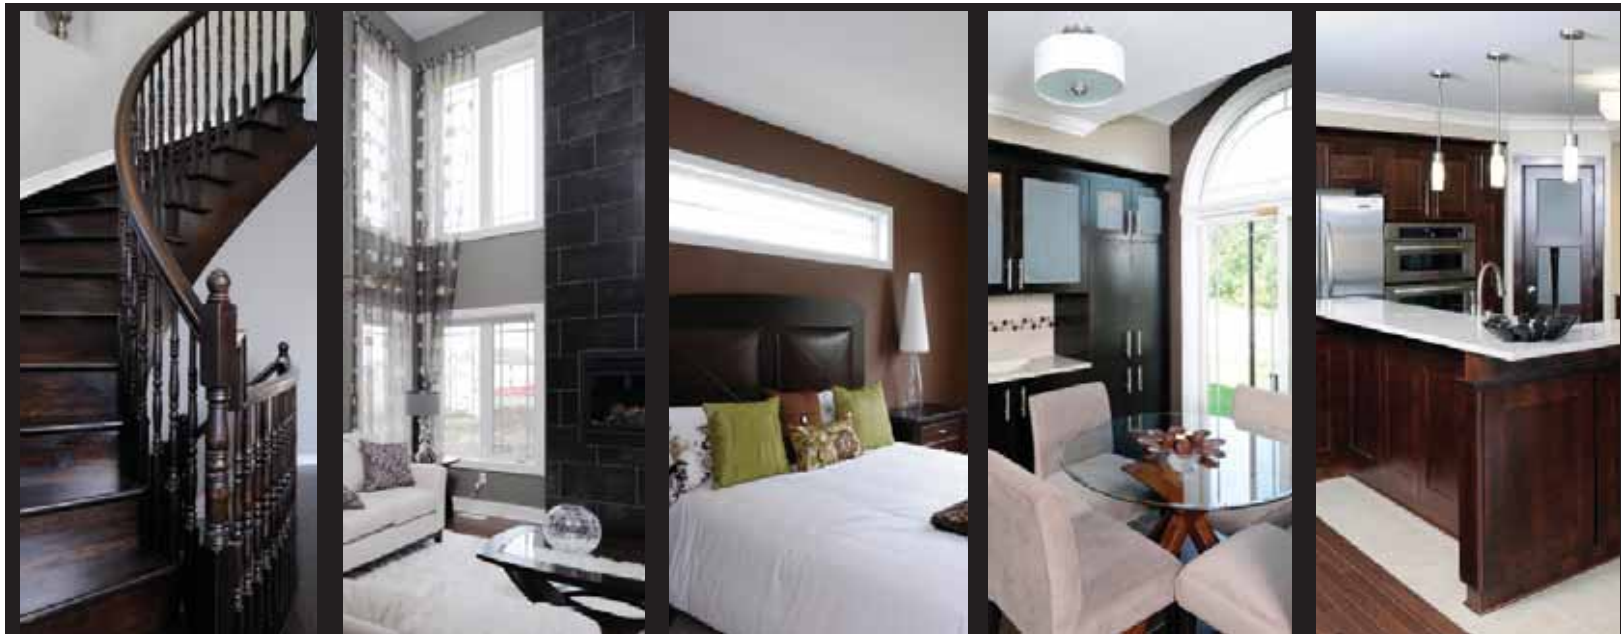

Keep it quirky

There's absolutely no need for a stripped-down style to appear bland.

- Be original, baby. "Layering textures, such as leather and chrome furniture with long silk curtains, textural or graphic feature walls, will give your space some style clout," describes Chinn. "Mix edgy items with some distressed older pieces like modern dining chairs around a rustic farmhouse table." After all, it's the unexpected details that keep style original.

Let there be light

Industrial looks tend to evoke darkness and a masculine harshness, so it's important to flood the room with light as the designer reveals. "Good light, both natural and electric is vital for the look to work. Try adding decorative accent lighting along with hidden lighting to keep the room feeling airy and not oppressive."

Bucket list. Columnist gets to shotgun beers with Fubar's Deaner

JEFF O'REILLY
For Metro

When Fubar — a low-budget, Canadian mockumentary chronicling the misadventures of the lovable head-banging duo of Dean Murdoch and Terry Cahill — was released in 2002, it took a lot of people by surprise, becoming an instant cult classic.

With a kick-ass soundtrack and unexpectedly hilarious and poignant storyline, the movie spawned dozens of memorable catchphrases, a book and a sequel as Terry and Deaner became heroes in a movie that stands proudly with Strange Brew and BeerFest as beer drinking cinematic masterpieces.

In Fubar, the preferred method of beer consumption is shotgunning and the preferred beer is Old Style Pilsner, but since they don't sell that in Ontario anymore I had to go to Plan B — Molson Canadian Lager — and just keep on given'r.

For the uninitiated, shotgunning a beer has you holding a beer can and punching a small hole near the bottom of the can (usually with a key or knife), then lifting the can and putting the hole to your mouth quickly, before opening the tab, which releases the now pressurized beer into your mouth at supersonic speeds.

In the interest of research I decided to track down Deaner and shotgun a few to see first-hand the difference in both taste and effect that this process creates from the traditional beer tasting regimen. Hey, who says science has to be boring?

When shotgunning a beer remember the following tips. It usually works better if the beer is a little warmer. Turn the can upside down and poke a hole on the side nearest to you near the bottom (which is now the top) to avoid getting sprayed. Make sure the part of the tab you grab is facing down so when you turn the beer upright you can pull it towards you. Take a deep breath, poke the hole, pull the can to your lips, open the tab and down it as fast as you can. A rush of beer hits your taste buds all at once in a whoosh. You should be chugging for all your worth since not finishing it all in one shot is pretty embarrassing in some circles. A little spillage may occur — results may vary.

As for analyzing the difference in gustatory qualities between fully appreciating a beer and shotgunning it? It's very much like comparing taking a glass of water on a date with a tsunami hitting you smack dab in the face, or savouring a beautifully cooked steak dinner with getting punched in the mouth with a hamburger. The tastes encountered from the rush of pounding back this highly carbonated, frothy, barley explosion are difficult to distinguish. And after a few seconds, when you undoubtedly belch, you will actually taste more on the way out than on the way in. It's not for the faint of heart.

Please enjoy responsibly.

Jane raises her glass at the St. Brigid's Centre for the Arts as its March 17 luncheon always has Irish eyes smiling. JEFF O'REILLY/FOR METRO

St. Patrick's Day. It's easy being green with Innis & Gunn

It's a hectic time of year for those of Irish descent, as the Ottawa Irish Society has been busy painting the town green, paying proud tribute to its heritage.

And, of course, we know the local Irish pubs will be filled with the joyous sounds of music and laughter as they embrace the infectious fun-loving spirit of Ireland every day of the year.

This year, something else "inspired by Ireland" caught my eye as the adventurous Scottish brewers Innis & Gunn tip their hat to the Emerald Isle with their new Irish Whiskey Cask Oak Aged Beer.

Upon securing some rare oak Irish whiskey casks, they decided to craft a stout (a nod to another ubiquitous Irish classic) and carefully mature the brew for a full 60 days in these vessels in hopes of taking on some of the wonderful triple-distilled charms of a legendary Irish whiskey.

Innis & Gunn Irish Whiskey Cask (7.4 per cent alcohol by volume) pours almost black with ruby hues and a foamy mocha head into a tulip glass.

Brown sugar, roasted coffee, chocolate, and oak fill the nose as sweet chocolate, vanilla, molasses, caramel and coffee flavours are found up front before the oak sets in with some earthy and nutty tones and the slight alcohol tingle of clean Irish whiskey (I'm guessing Jameson).

The mouth feel is creamy and smooth with a nice, slightly chalky, dry finish — a little lighter than most stouts, but a fitting celebration of some Irish legends for sure. Slainte!

The Reel Food Film Festival returns March 22-29 at the Ottawa Public Library with more impressive films examining raising awareness about food and agricultural issues. Two feature films will be screened: To Make a Farm; and Land Awakening.

The festival's partners include Just Food, Ottawa Good Food Box and One World Arts organization, which share their vision of screening local or Canadian-made films that promote community discussion.

Voted one of the most popular Canadian films at the Vancouver International Film Festival in 2011, To Make a Farm tells the story of five young individuals who decide to become small-scale farmers. Their adventurous spirits are challenged daily.

"It's hard to tell someone that you're going to become a farmer," says one participant. "They just kind of stop."

Yet, despite their Land Awakening is about Mexican-Canadian filmmaker Raúl Álvarez's quest around Canada and the Mediterranean about chemical-free agriculture.

Binghamton pipeline pumps Sens up for playoffs

THE HOCKEY NEWS

Murray Pam
ottawa@metronews.ca

For the Ottawa Senators, happiness is yelling Bingo! Or at least calling it.

Thanks in large part to the development job of AHL Binghamton coaches Kurt Kleinendorst and Steve Stirling the past two seasons, the Sens are well-positioned for a playoff drive, fortified with impressive depth.

Last year, Bobby Butler, Erik Condra and Colin Greening ascended from the farm and suddenly became household names ... outside their own households. A year later, Jim O'Brien and Rob Klinkhamer were recalled and are making an impact.

O'Brien has nestled onto the fourth line, pushing Zenon Konopka to the press box most nights. Playing alongside Nick Foligno and Chris Neil, the 23-year-old O'Brien injects energy and speed into a unit that has become so effective, it's been a de facto third line of late. Over the past three games, the 6-foot-2, 200-pound O'Brien has averaged more than 16 minutes of ice-time, some of which has been on the penalty kill. Coach Paul MacLean was so enamored with O'Brien's defensive abilities that he was utilized as the lone forward during an overtime penalty kill against Buffalo on Saturday.

Montreal's Brad Staubitz gets crushed between Nick Foligno and Chris Neil on Wednesday night. PAUL CHIASSON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Similar to O'Brien, the 'Missing Klink' also adds quickness and size. Acquired earlier this season from Chicago for a seventh-round pick, the 6-foot-3, 215-pound Klinkhamer has slid in seamlessly on the left side of the club's second line with Kyle Turris and Daniel Alfredsson. The Lethbridge, Alta., native has averaged 4.25 hits per game in his four appearances, creating time and space for his linemates. Prorated over a whole season, that total would rank Klinkhamer second among the NHL's heavy hitters.

Neither player is expected to fill the net: O'Brien has two goals in 16 outings with the Senators, while Klinkhamer is still looking for No. 1. The latter isn't discouraged, however. "You start to worry when you don't get the chances," Klinkhamer said. "That's what my old man used to say. I am getting chances so it's not time to worry yet."

While the pair play similar styles, their climbs to the NHL are diverse. O'Brien, drafted 29th overall in 2007, was Bryan Murray's first-ever selection as Sens GM. The 27-year-old Klinkhamer was undrafted and has toiled in the AHL the past five campaigns.

Regardless of their routes, O'Brien and Klinkhamer help represent the progress the franchise has made in building a foundation that will endure.

Howard wants to finish season with Magic

The Orlando Magic entered their third meeting with the Miami Heat shrouded in uncertainty because of the unknown status of their biggest star.

Dwight Howard made a preseason request to be traded from the only team the former No. 1 pick has ever known, leaving fans wondering if every game could be his final one with in a Magic jersey.

"Well, I told those guys,

I've been telling them for the past two or three weeks now that I want to stay and finish the season," Howard said. "I told them I feel we have a great opportunity to win and I told them that I want to be here and I want to bring a championship here. I told them they've got to give me that chance. They didn't trade me at the beginning of the season and I told them I'd go out and play as hard as I could every night to put our team in a position to win."

Coach of Knicks steps down

Mike D'Antoni resigned Wednesday as coach of the New York Knicks, whose brief resurgence in a wave of Linsanity quickly gave way to a late-season skid that puts them in danger of even making the NBA playoffs. Assistant coach Mike Woodson will serve as interim head coach. GMs ponder shift of power to Penguins

NHL. 'They're obviously the best team in the league,' says GM Sather of Pittsburgh with Crosby

There were a few jealous glances cast toward Pittsburgh GM Ray Shero.

News of Sidney Crosby's impending return to the Penguins lineup left Shero's colleagues wondering how much tougher the path to the Stanley Cup has become as they gathered in Florida for the NHL's general managers' meetings in Boca Raton, Fla.

"With him back, it's certainly going to make it a lot more difficult," New York Rangers GM Glen Sather said Wednesday after the meetings wrapped up.

Crosby is scheduled to see his first action since Dec. 5 when Pittsburgh (42-21-5) visits the Rangers at Madison Square Garden on Thursday night. New York (44-18-7) is currently the top seed in the Eastern Conference, six points up on the Penguins.

Ottawa outlook

Ottawa Senators GM Bryan Murray on the return of Sidney Crosby.

I hope he doesn't play against us (in the playoffs)."

However, Crosby is re-joining a Pittsburgh team that has won nine straight games and appears to be peaking just before the start of the playoffs. Adding the best player in hockey to that mix is a scary thing for opponents.

"It's not like they needed help," said Philadelphia Flyers GM Paul Holmgren.

Not only does his team face the Penguins three times before the end of the regular season, they are also possible first-round opponents.

"Obviously, Pittsburgh over the last couple of years have been a tremendous team," he said. "There was a period of time last year where they had Sidney and Evgeni (Malkin) out and they still continued to march along. They're certainly one of the top teams in the East."

Crosby's absence dates back to January 2011, when he sustained blows to the head in consecutive games and was diagnosed with a concussion. He returned to the Penguins' lineup in November before suffering a setback in December that was linked to a soft tissue neck issue.

While acknowledging that his team found it easier to face Pittsburgh without Crosby, New Jersey Devils GM Lou Lamoriello indicated that seeing No. 87 back will be a welcome sight.

"It's great that he's back," said Lamoriello. "He's certainly not only a great player, but he's a great personality in the game. He represents the game as well as anybody represents the game." THE CANADIAN PRESS

European action axed

Uncertainty surrounding the NHL's collective bargaining agreement has prompted the league to call off next fall's games in Europe.

- A senior league source confirmed Wednesday that the season-opening overseas games have been cancelled.

- It will be the first time since 2007 that the NHL won't kick off the season overseas.

- "I'm not going to comment as to what the next CBA may look like," said commissioner Gary Bettman. "But the CBA that we currently have is in effect until Sept. 15 and we told clubs to continue to operate under the CBA."

- Pie. Thank you Pie, It's been awhile since I sent you some words to make you smile. You are always in my thoughts, so don't think that I forgot. I want you to know my love for you continues to grow. We've been together awhile, lets continue to make each other smile. I gave you my heart from the very start. A lot has changed, but our love still remains. See you tonight for pie! Love Muffinman

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20.

Don't expect rivals to play fairly but that's OK because you have no intention of playing fairly either!

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

Let others know what is on your mind. You should really be this direct more often.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20.

You are in an impulsive mood at the moment and common sense is unlikely to be a factor in your thinking. Don't gamble your rep.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22.

Put your own needs first today and ignore those who say you should be more careful. Be more adventurous — all the time!

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. It's not like you to have doubts but something is tormenting you more than it should. Focus on the positive.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. If you act on every piece of advice you get today, you won't get much done. You might as well ignore it.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22.

Assert yourself today and let colleagues and employers know you have what it takes to earn a promotion. Shine bright.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21.

You may have big plans but do they stand a realistic chance of success? That is the question.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21.

Today is decision day as far as a work-related matter is concerned. Make your choice.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan. 20.

You will be in a fault-finding mood today. You just can't keep from pointing others' mistakes.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb. 18.

Look for time-saving and energy-saving shortcuts today — there's plenty of them waiting to be used.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

You don't care how many egos might get bruised, you have things to say and they cannot wait any longer. SALLY BROMPTON
